Once there lived an old donkey. In his younger years, he worked hard to serve his master. He would carry the vegetable from the farm to the market every morning. In the winter, he would follow his master to the hills to look for food and carry wood from the forest. Never once did he complain.

As the years passed, the donkey became weaker and soon he could not work anymore. For a few months, his master kept him in a stable and gave him food and water. Then, one day, his master bought a new donkey. The younger donkey took over the old donkey's job. His master soon neglected him.

The old donkey was upset when he heard that he was soon to be sold at the market. He overheard his master telling his friend that he was old and useless. Feeding him would be a waste of money.

The night before he was to be taken to the market, the donkey heard some noises in the farm. Curious, he slipped out of the stable to have a look. He saw a shadow making its way to the chicken coop. it was a wolf.

The old donkey quickly galloped up and down the farmyard, braying loudly. The angry farmer came out with a whip. However, he saw what the old donkey trying to do. The farmer managed to save his chickens and so, the old donkey managed to live the rest of his days on the farm.
